

"Parenting in Cyberspace"

BCFPA

Kelowna

May 2006

Fear not! Techno-speak decoded!
Youth use of online communication is presenting many new parenting challenges. This workshop will focus on equipping those who care for youth with the tools to deal with these. Topics will include; web 101, emerging trends in online youth culture, high risk activities online, the nature of sexual exploitation in cyberspace, and internet safety tips and resources. This workshop will NOT be boring!

Outline

- ① evaluation form
- ① web 101 (9-9:45)
- ① video (9:45-10:30)
- ① break (10:30-10:45)

WEB 101

- history
- overviews of online use by youth
- ways to go online
- tools that interface with online culture - ipods, downloading music off the web, webcams, digital camera phones, stats,stats
- spaces . communities, cultures levels of the web to 'be' in (teen sites, online communities, pedo communities, online games, nexopia)

History of the Web

- invented by the US army in 1969...
- 1994 html began the www
- 1999, 100% of Can. schools and libraries online
- 2005 - 94% of youth have internet access at home

Ipsos Reid Report 2005

- according to an Ipsos Reid Report release in Toronto in August of 2005,
 - all age internet use up 46 % over 2002 engagement
 - 18-34 year old internet users spend 14.7 hours online a week; 3 more than t.v.
 - "younger Canadians are spending more time online than watching t.v." ... this has... "significant implications for advertisers and marketers".
 - advertisers are advised to switch from interruption to the age of engagement
 - if them then why not us????

Young Canadians in a Wired World; Phase II,

- (5,272 youth grades 4-7, focus groups with parents).
 - parents surveyed in 2003 “universally complained that their children are wasting their time online chatting and playing games”
 - youth “Java script as an item in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms”,
 - strengthening their communities
 - spending time in very commercialized spaces
 - giving out too much information about themselves
 - are concerned about offensive content and the amount of porn they see
 - parents/youth advocates’ roles; rules, supervision and education DO have an effect

Springing into Action

Hi All!

Well, we had a great trip to Vancouver Island at the end of last month. Thanks to Lee, Elaine and Ellie for their help in hosting five successful presentations. It was great to meet the youth in Courtney and in Victoria. (Feel free to add a comment if you were at any of these presentations.)

As you can see the website is growing in leap and bounds these days. We're constantly adding more links and resources so check back often.

Thanks,
Merlyn

Welcome to our new SOLOS blog!

The issue of how to integrate the implications of the internet into our parenting and professional lives is going to be long standing. We all have much work to do.

I'm hoping that here, on the SOLOS blog, in the comments sections on the articles and through the bcseyelist, we can create an inclusive online space to talk about that work.

An electronic space if you will, for those concerned about sexual exploitation, online culture, and youth issues to exchange information,

Advice for Users of Online Communities:

Nexopia's Advice for users of Online Communities:

- Anyone can be anything on the Internet; someone claiming to be a 15 year old girl may in fact be a 45 year old man.
- Don't ever give out personal information on your Profile or to Strangers. Profiles are publicly visible to anyone, so don't include your last name, phone numbers, addresses, school names, or anything else that can lead someone to you.
- Only use sites/services like Nexopia that allow you to block Messages from people you're not comfortable with - if you're uncomfortable with the way a conversation is going, just get out, do not worry about offending the other person
- If you're going to send personal information, send it as a message, not a comment, as comments are visible to the public.
- Take precautions when meeting people - If you're going to meet someone, always take a friend, go to an open and public place and make sure someone you trust knows where you're going and when you'll be back. Taking a cell phone helps provide extra security.

Nexopia's Advice to parents of teens:

- Be aware of what your child is doing online
- Place the computer in a common family area. This way you can easily keep an eye on what they're doing
- Have a talk with your child about the dangers associated with any communication medium
- Educate yourself. If you understand how the internet works, you can better understand the dangers and risks

What Nexopia does to protect its users:

- Every picture put on the site is checked for content before going on your profile - If you can't wear it in the street/beach, it's not allowed
- Users can block anyone from sending them Messages and can choose to only receive messages from Friends
- Over 300 people check content on the site and remove anything inappropriate
- We do not knowingly allow anyone under the age of 14 to join.
- We regularly liaise with the Police on issues of legality and safety and do everything we can to co-operate with any investigation involving the site
- There is a "Report Abuse" button on every profile. This means that if there is any perceived offense by anyone, that comment or picture can, and if

- promotion of abusive behaviours

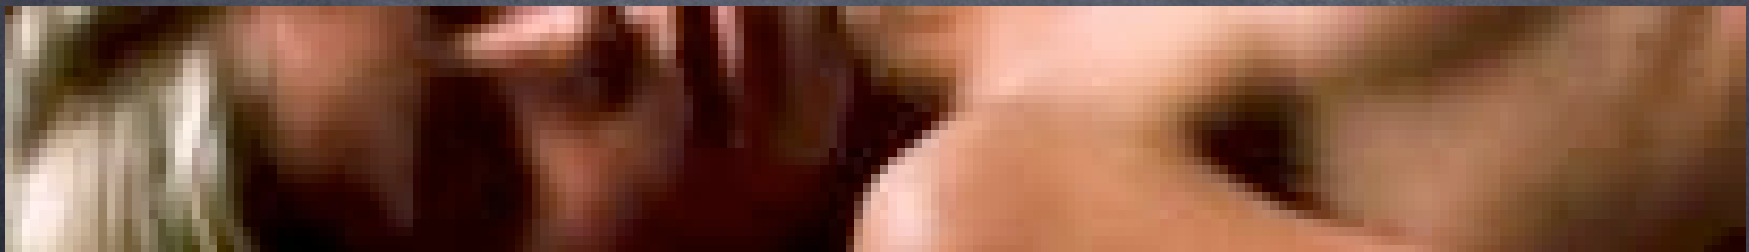

B.C. Youth Stats; McCreary

- The McCreary Centre Society, Adolescent Health Survey, 2004 reported that "about 15% of students (surveyed) said they had been in contact with a stranger on the Internet who made them feel unsafe" (pg. 35).
- Girls were 3 times more likely to report feeling unsafe, (23% girls, and 7% boys).

Cop in Ireland who said.... "I used to have to say

Mrs.. Brown, Mr.. Jones down the street has abused your son Tommy. We're charging him, Tommy will have to testify and we will help you get to support services to assist you through this difficult time' ".

- "Now I have to say..."
- 'Mrs. Brown, Mr. Jones down the street has abused your son Tommy and recorded the abuse in a series of 45 pictures that he has uploaded to the internet where it is becoming part of a worldwide collection of images of sexually assaulted children.'
- Do you want to see the pictures?
- Do you not want to see the pictures? "
- If we ask Tommy about these pictures and he denies anything happened...
- we may have to show Tommy the pictures so he can 'remember'.
- We have concerns that these images may be traumatic for him to view, not because he appears violated, but because he appears to be participating very happily.
- We will never be able to guarantee Tommy that he won't be recognized for the rest of his life by individuals who have viewed these pictures online and may bump into him at the grocery store or library.

Childporn vs. child-prank

Ex-girlfriend's nude photos lead to child porn charges

Fri, 22 Apr 2005

CBC News

TORONTO - A 16-year-old from Toronto is facing child pornography charges after nude photos of his former girlfriend were posted on a website.

The photos appeared on a teen-oriented website in February, shortly after the ex-girlfriend, now 16, complained to police that her former boyfriend had extorted money from her.

Police say the ex-boyfriend put the photos on the site and wrote a message impersonating his former girlfriend, making it seem as if it were her site.

The girl has missed several weeks of school and feels humiliated, said police.

Police can't get the website operator to take down the photos, which were taken with the girl's consent. She was 15 when the photos were taken.

Run by a U.S.-based company, the general-interest, teen-oriented site gets thousands of hits a day. Police say its operators are not being co-operative and are ignoring requests to remove the photos.

The boy has been charged with possessing and distributing child pornography and with impersonation with intent.

Offensive sites

- Students in Grades 7 to 11 were asked whether they had visited certain “offensive” sites on purpose during the current school year.
- Overall:
- 16 percent had visited porn sites.
- 18 percent had visited violence or gore sites.
- 12 percent had visited gambling sites.
- 9 percent had visited adult chat rooms.
- 5 percent had visited hate sites (e.g. those dealing in racial or religious hatred).
- 34 percent had visited at least one of the above types of site.

Sexual and Violent Content

- of top 50 sites; 28% have violent content, 32% have sexual content
- eBaumsworld (humour site), Newsgroups (multimedia site), Piczo (image site)
- Nexopia and doyoulookgood and ratemybody most popular among grade 8-11 girls
- 91% of youth do NOT intentionally seek out adult content

Online Predators

Wired Mag Quote

- "According to his MySpace page, the 41-year-old San Bruno, California, resident is single, a Sagittarius, a nonsmoker and nondrinker, and counts an online stripper among his six friends. But California's online database of registered sex offenders offers a different profile of the same man: convictions for forced sodomy, oral sex and "lewd and lascivious acts" -- all with a person under the age of 14."

Grooming, Luring and Recruitment

Role of compliant victims

- Lanning work
- Describes children who "consent" or cooperate in their sexual exploitation I.e. getting on the bus.
- "it confuses us to see victims in child pornography giggling or laughing".
- Priority on grooming and seduction techniques by predators.
- Results? Victims failing to disclose, distorted victim disclosures, lifetime of shame; offenders groom multiple victims; ineffective prevention programs.

Police officer investigated for luring teens on web

- By Monique Tamminga LangleyTimes Reporter Oct 28 2005
- Hundreds of Langley teens regularly look at the popular website Nexopia. Langley RCMP are investigating one of their own members, for allegedly looking at the site and using it to lure children. No charges have been laid in the case yet, but the officer is suspended from duty for now.

Rules Make a Difference

- Rules at home have a positive effect on youth online behaviour!
 - (especially for younger kids)
 - having a rule about meeting online acquaintances reduces the likelihood kids will, from 34 to 16%
 - kids more likely to break rules as they get older
 - boys less regulated than girls even though they are more likely to seek out porn violence and gore

Suggestions for Signing up for Online Accounts

The difference in online identities and off line identities is problematic. (see "Be Somebody Else But Be Yourself At All Times: Degrees Of Identity Deception In Chatrooms", <http://www.once.uclan.ac.uk/idic.htm>).

In order to be able to have online accounts and be safe online at the same time, here are a few suggestions for both adults and youth about signing up for online accounts.

Use these tips to construct an online identity and use it consistently! (Then you don't have to make something different up every time.)

1. First and Last Name

- Avoid using your last name when ever possible. Assuming an online name can be as easy as using your first name twice or picking a fictional name. (i.e. Merlyn Merlyn, Bev Bev or Bugs Bunny).

2. Email address

- Set up an email address just for your online accounts. It can be either web-based, like hotmail or gmail, or set up an extra account with your internet service provider or network technician. This email should not have any identifying information. (I.e. nothere@shaw.ca, nonone@hotmail.com or blahblah@gmail.com) This is your junk email account. Use it to sign up for all of your online accounts and places where they require an email address but you don't want to clutter up your personal or work email address.

3. Gender

- If you have to pick a gender be consistent. (I choose my physical one).

4. Usernames and passwords

- Usernames, identities, and passwords should include numbers as well as letters and should be different for all your online accounts. Yes, it is difficult, if not impossible to remember all the different accounts and numbers we need to but this can be handled a few different ways;
 - i. Keep list on paper in your desk, purse or briefcase.
 - ii. Or you can use software that will store your information securely!
 1. Here is a free Windows program click here - <https://sourceforge.net/projects/passwordsafe/>
 2. For a Mac version, look for Password Retriever 5.1.5 here - <http://www.koingosw.com/products/passwordretriever.php>.

Location of Computer

- not in a bedroom
- not in private place
- wireless laptops?
- webcams unsupervised?

Child and Youth Work at CAMH

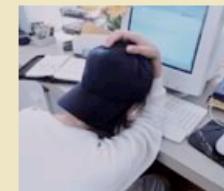

There are currently 11 child and youth workers employed at the Centre. These professionals are located in two main programs within CAMH. The majority of the Child and Youth Workers work as important members within clinical multi-disciplinary teams found in the Child, Youth and Family program. The expansion to the Dual Diagnosis program has meant Child and Youth Workers are now working within the adult mental health area.

Although Child and Youth Workers are a non - regulated body of professionals, they are graduates of a three year community college program from either George Brown College, Humber College or Centennial College. Often, they have continued their education with a BA from Ryerson in Child and Youth Work. All Child and Youth Workers are encouraged to be a part of the Ontario Association of Child and Youth Counselors.

Child and Youth Work has a well established reputation at the community colleges for the training of students. Third year students are provided placements in all areas of the Child, Youth and Family program. Our educational coordinator is Susan Lytle, CYW, who is the contact for all three community colleges. Susan is located at the Clarke Site.

The Child and Youth Workers work closely together and have meetings to discuss issues regarding student training, opportunities and areas that affect the Child and Youth Work discipline. These meetings are chaired by the Child and Youth Worker in Chief.

Post-Abortion Syndrome (PAS) is a form of Post Traumatic Stress Syndrome (PTSD). PTSD is the result of having suffered an event so stressful and so traumatic that the person is taken beyond his/her ability to cope in a normal manner. Victims of PTSD are unable to simply resume their lives where they left off before the traumatic event. Instead they experience a variety of reactions that do not go away merely with the passage of time. Although the symptoms of PTSD (and PAS) are varied, and although they may not surface for years after the trauma, they are nonetheless real and should be dealt with.

- Taskbar: Includes the Windows Start button, several open applications (Nexopia, A9.com, Suicide: Rea..., Dawson Creek, Microsoft Po...), a search bar with 'copernic', and system tray icons for network, volume, and time (7:46 AM).
- Browser Title Bar: 'Suicide: Read This First - Mozilla Firefox'.
- Menu Bar: File, Edit, View, Go, Bookmarks, Tools, Help.
- Address Bar: 'http://www.metanoia.org/suicide/'
- Page Content:
 - Text: if you are thinking about
 - Text: suicide... read this first
 - Text:

If you are feeling suicidal now, please stop long enough to read this. It will only take about five minutes. I do not want to talk you out of your bad feelings. I am not a therapist or other mental health professional - only someone who knows what it is like to be in pain.
 - Text:

I don't know who you are, or why you are reading this page. I only know that for the moment, you're reading it, and that is good. I can assume that you are here because you are troubled and considering ending your life. If it were possible, I would prefer to be there with you at this moment, to sit with you and talk, face to face and heart to heart. But since that is not possible, we will have to make do with this.
 - Text:

I have known a lot of people who have wanted to kill themselves, so I have some small idea of what you might be feeling. I know that you might not be up to reading a long book, so I am going to keep this short. While we are together here for the next five minutes, I have five simple, practical things I would like to share with you. I won't argue with you about whether you should kill yourself. But I assume that if you are thinking about it, you feel pretty bad.
 - Text:

Well, you're still reading, and that's very good. I'd like to ask you to stay with me for the rest of this page. I hope it means that you're at least a tiny bit unsure, somewhere deep inside, about whether or not you really will end your life. Often people feel that, even in the deepest darkness of despair. Being unsure about dying is okay and normal. The fact that you are still alive at this minute means you are still a little bit unsure. It means that even while you want to die, at the same time some part of you still wants to live. So let's hang on to that, and keep going for a few more minutes.

ONLINE YOUTH SAFETY PORTAL

Teens today are faced with previously unimagined situations and relationships online. For youth, parents and professionals to begin the work of integrating online realities into our lives and work, we need to have information and dialogue.

We hope to facilitate that dialogue by providing resources that will help foster community discussion. Check out the research, information, blog—and welcome to the Online Safety Portal.

Teens' online postings are new tool for police

The rapid increase in law enforcement use of MySpace, including security officers who routinely monitor the sites in high schools across the country, has caught the attention of civil libertarians and Internet advocates, who worry that in some cases students whose behavior would otherwise pass unnoticed are being subjected to extra scrutiny.
